

Change Password

Use this page to edit the admin's login information. It is recommended that you change the default software username and password as soon as installation of the software is complete. The email field below will only apply to the listings that the admin places on the site. However, it is recommended that if the site administrator wishes to place listings that he/she registers a separate user account for that purpose.

If you lose your admin password, you can edit your password directly in the database within the geodesic_logins table for the user id=1. After doing so, log in to this Software's Admin with your newly reset password, click admin password and reenter your data. This will once again encrypt your password, providing the additional security features.
