

Misc. Display

This section is reserved for miscellaneous modules that are used to display data on your site.

Hottest Listings Module

This module produces a table which displays the results of the most viewed listings on your site. You can specify the number of listings that will be displayed in the table, as well as, columns to be used.

The number of times viewed counts are what determines which listings are displayed on this list. This value is not reset when a classified is renewed. This value can also be manipulated by the seller to inflate the viewed count value. It will take a bit of vigilance on the administrator's to make sure this value isn't manipulated to keep a specific listing in the hottest listing display module.

My Account Links Module

This module displays links to the various "Account Management" pages that are available to a user. The user's current page is shown via a grey background, and certain items needing attention are automatically highlighted in red. These colors (and other design-related elements of this module) can be changed through the CSS file located at
